

Words: Bill Roper
Music: Bill Roper
Copyright 1987

Dream Rider

G                    Gmaj7                    Am7/G                    C/G                    G
Dream in the evening when day passes gently into night.
G                    Gmaj7                    Am7/G                    C/G                    G
Call the dream rider who glides on the dark winds of the night.
                  C                    Bm                    C                    Bm
And he'll fly in the evening and he'll carry you away.
                  C                    Bm                    C                    G
You'll fly through your dark dreams till the dawning of the day.

Pass through the darkness, the dream rider there close by your side.
Reach lands you've dreamed of, the dream rider here now as your guide.
See the people there waiting, and feel their love for your.
There's no room for the hating that gnaws your heart in two.

Stay while you can there -- the dream rider won't let you remain.
He'll grab at your heart strings and cast you back down to Earth again.
And as you awake now, he makes your memories fade.
The dream is forgotten, but perhaps -- the peace has stayed.

(Note to anyone intending to play this -- these are the base chords, but there are lots and lots of fiddly bits going on on the 1st string. Good luck!)